CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

“Journalism Quarterly Research Review” invites contributors who have something interesting to say about journalism (press, television, radio, Internet), its history, theory and the newest trends. We invite materials, which discuss national and international media, management of the media industry, journalism ethics, process of media visualization and methodologies on media research. Journal places no restriction on the topics discussed. Editors of “Journalism Quarterly Research Review” invite contributors to write either in the native language or in English. Materials would be published with a summary both in English and Polish. Articles would be reviewed by scientists and researchers of media and journalism.
